

March 1, 2011

Dear Dr.

When I was in a busy small animal practice, one of the most difficult requests I received was to come to the client's home to perform a needed euthanasia for their pet. Time constraints, scheduling difficulties, and other practical concerns made granting this request impossible. Just as I did then, I know you want the very best for those in your care. Your desire is to make the difficult time of euthanasia a little easier for both the pet and the client.

In-home pet euthanasia is the only veterinary service I offer. Serving your clients and their pets in a professional and dignified manner is my goal. Since this is the only service I offer, I am able to travel to the home and spend the necessary time to allow your client and his/her family to have the personal comfort of being with their pet in its natural surroundings.

Because in-home pet euthanasia is my sole service, any questions not directly pertinent to the pet's medical euthanasia are directed back to you as the client's veterinarian. No medical advice is offered for other pets the client may own. I carry no medications or equipment not directly utilized in performing a safe and peaceful euthanasia.

As a courtesy to you, your clinic will be notified on a regular basis of any euthanasia services performed for one or more of your clients. In this way, you will be able to stay current with the medical records for your patients. I thank you in advance for working with me to provide your clients with peaceful and dignified in-home end-of-life care.

For further information about my service, please visit my website at www.PeacefulPetPassage.info.

Sincerely,

Dr. Debra E. Benner